World War II Vets Urged To Assure Loan Deadline

There is some good news for many World War Two veterans in the State of Alabama whose names are on the Veterans Administration's direct loan waiting list, but whose entitlement to a GI loan is due to expire on the 25th of this month. Entitlement to GI loans, however, guaranteed and direct, will start expiring for War Two veterans on July 25th, 1962, and will expire each day after that for additional veterans until the final deadline date of July 25th, 1963. Each War Two veteran's GI loan entitlement depends on the date of his discharge and the number of months he had in service. Under the law, the VA may not make a direct loan to a veteran on its waiting list after his entitlement has expired unless he has been issued a commitment to make him a loan before his deadline date is reached. Normally if the veteran name is on the direct loan list and his loan deadline date is July 25th, or any date within the next 12 months, and if not issued a loan commitment by that time. The veteran would then not be eligible for a loan. In order to extend his entitlement for a few months, if he has not already received a definite commitment within a few days he will receive what's known as a "conditional" commitment. War Two veterans who now on the direct loan waiting list and for those who get on the waiting list by July 26th, whose loan entitlement expires between July 25th and June 30th, 1963, this condition commitment will mean that he may get a direct loan even though the deadline has passed. A veteran interested in securing a direct loan but feel it's no use to apply because his deadline date is coming up in the very near future, he may apply before July 25th and be issued a conditional commitment. In that way his entitlement expiration date will be extended.

Alabama High School Athletic Association

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — They'll be trading where the great have trod — the 50 seniors in the 15th annual North - South All-Star high school football game, August 9, at the University of Alabama's Denny Stadium.

Many high schoolers playing in this game have gone on to even greater college sports and made their names bywords in Alabama athletic circles.

To be chosen by Alabama coaches and principals to play in the North - South game is one of the highest honors a prep scholar can earn. Many so honored say this selection not only inspired, but enabled them, to go on to college and win even higher accolades — and more important, an education.

A quick check of the game's past history reveals many famous names who have played in this game. In 1949, there was a pair — Fulback Bobby Marlow, Troy and Halback Cecil Holston, Tuscaloosa. After starring as All-Stars, they went on to Alabama, for more glory.

Claude V. Sals, of West End, and Charles Little, of Andalusia, were among top 100 performers, and they went to Auburn together. Both were running backs. In 1951, Sals, now head manager at Birmingham's John Carroll High, returns to the All-Star this year as a South coach.

Corkey Tharp, of Tamsay, Birmingham, became one of the great names in Alabama football, as did Bobby Luna, of Huntsville. They played in the 1951 All-Star engagement. Lanier teammates (quarterback Bart Starr and End Nix) Germans continued their tandem at Alabama, after playing together through high school and the All-Star class. Starr later went to the Green Bay Packers where he is today. Nix, the great quarterback in the history of the game, was selected captain of the 1951 All-Star team. The Sneekers and the Sneakers will serve as the co-captain. The Sneekers were the winners of the game 17-11. National Security has formed a ladies team and they are joining the league this week. The games are being played on Tuesdays at 5 P.M.

The Teen Club had a winter toast at the dam on Tuesday night. The largest crowd of men had ever gathered at the dam. The girls were presented to the group. The Giving Sauer was given by Jan Dowdy and John Imman and Little Nell presented by Susan Cooper. Jo Ann Packer, who has been a member of the Teen Club since 1958, was elected president. Several songs were played and served for the group. Over which group singing and jokes were enjoyed by everyone. The club membership has now grown to 29.

Mr. Deane's plan to build a new house on a side street with an old center of information of merchandise that included old and new clothing as well as used furniture. The house had been contributed $700 to the venture, so it was hardly over-capitalized.

Mr. Deane packed his car with dresses and sold them from house to house while Mr. Clark spent his days minding the store. True to their business name, the partners literally accepted anything in trade for merchandise. They once traded some rocking chairs for a load of peanut hay and then unloaded the hay in Montgomery County, making a nice profit on the deal.

This is the background to the story of Deane's, a conventional business which is located on one of Elba's main streets. After about a year in operation, Mr. Deane bought out his partner's interest and changed the store name, at the same time clearing out the furniture and taking in ready-to-wear exclusively.

Mr. Deane then added nationally advertised lines as well as possible, until the business bore very little resemblance to its original form. And when the store was moved from house to house while Mr. Clark spent his days minding the store. True to their business name, the partners literally accepted anything in trade for merchandise. They once traded some rocking chairs for a load of peanut hay and then unloaded the hay in Montgomery County, making a nice profit on the deal.

For a long time Mr. Deane managed with his one-man operation, with a lady to help him with the bookkeeping and more customers it was necessary to add more clerks. His wife, who had been teaching school, resigned her post and entered the store as a clerk.

Mr. Deane has found his business well established and bringing in many new customers. He says he does not buy special merchandise for these special promotions but that it is always his regular stock reduced at the end of the season.

"GIANT TOMATO"

Mr. George Hall, who lives in the Housing Project, Unit 116, presented The Clipper of a "giant" tomato Tuesday morning. The tomato weighed a fraction less than one and one-half pounds. The tomato is nice and firm.

Mr. Hall planted several tomatoes in the flower bed at the back of his apartment and they have gathered enough tomatoes for his home use. According to Mr. Hall he estimates that the few plants will produce several bushels of tomatoes during the season.

The "big" tomato was on display at The News office Tuesday and Wednesday and then the editor has permission to "eat" the giant tomato.

In making this announcement, McNulty pointed out that "continuing master emphasis is being placed by University Hospital on the education of health personnel to serve in communities throughout the state as the country."

As a full division of the University Hospital, University Hospital is the primary teaching hospital for the state's medical students.

Mrs. Sam Collier

Hostess At Morning Coffee

Mrs. and Mrs. Elton Lunsford were hosts at a delightful afternoon coffee at their home on Troy Road Friday night. A massive bouquet of marigolds formed a centerpiece for the outdoor table. The unique plates of wood, sent to the hostess by her daughter from the Far East, completed the picture of rustic beauty. Those included were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lunsford, Mr. and Mrs. Will Kendrick and the host and hostess.

Lunsfords Hosts At Alfresco Supper

Mrs. Sam Collier was hostess at a morning coffee Friday at her home. The occasion was a surprise stork shower honoring Mrs. T. K. Dorsey. There were lavender and white glads, mums, and dahlias were used in decorations. The party setting evidenced the artistic talent and training of the hostess and was a scene of rare beauty. With coffee, the hostess served a variety of party dainties. Approximately twenty guests attended.

Mrs. and Mrs. G. D. Pierce of Starke, Florida and Mrs. Glo Evans, of Opp, were guests of Mrs. Sam B. Young Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Collier, of Avon Park, Florida were guests of his mother, Mrs. George Collier last week.

Mrs. James Reddock and children, Cynthia and Eric, of Milton, Florida, visited with her son, Florida, visited in the home of Mrs. Reddock's sister, Mrs. Cecil Prescott, last Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Sam Carey, of Dothan, visited friends in Elba Tuesday.

WILL THE COURTS YET TAKE OVER? In the fight on re-apportionment, those who oppose it and all plans urged that the plan finally adopted will not stand the test of the courts. And that very well may be so. Nobody knows what a latterday court is going to do. Especially a Federal court. They are as unpredictable as an African witch court where the verdict comes from the verities of the upper crust to whom his court is beholden.

But as I see it from what I consider as right, the most responsible point against the re-apportionment bill finally adopted is that it does not become effective until the election of 1966. That will be the test. If the re-apportionment bill finally adopted is that it does not become effective until the election of 1966. That will be the test. ## C. of C. Manager Asks For Magazine Donation For Asia

A people-to-people project in the form of discarded U. S. magazines is making such deep inroads in offsetting Communist lies in Asia, according to Bob Mason, manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, that propaganda agents are hard pressed to stem the tide.

"The average American," said Mason, who was formerly associated with Dorsey Truller in Elba as sales promotion manager, "can't conceive the volume or extent of the vicious and hate-inciting propaganda against the United States that is being poured daily into Asian countries by Red China through newspaper, magazine and radio. Most of the Communist propaganda, distorted in truth and fact to place us in a bad light in the eyes and minds of millions who haven't the slightest idea of what Americans are really like, is in English, which is widely understood in Southeast Asia and India."

To combat the false and misleading conception of the American people circulated by Communist, the Chamber manager said, Americans are coming to their own defense with magazines that portray us as we actually live and

Lightning Rods Are Important Specialist Says

The thunderstorm season has begun and lightning can be dangerous, reminds Bill Cox, Auburn Extension Farm Building Specialist. But a few simple precautions can reduce the possibility of property damage or personal injury.

Each week, Mason said, thousands of requests for old American magazines are received from India, Pakistan, Indonesia and other Asian countries. The type of magazines most requested are those which paint a true picture of the American way of life that tells and shows what we look like, how we dress and what we eat, what we do for recreation, the sports we engage in, our schools and churches and industries. Almost every kind of magazine is welcomed, including farm journals and technical publications.

"It isn't often," Mason went on, "that something like an old magazine which we throw away can be valued so highly by someone who knows nothing about us except what the Communist say and write about us, and who forms an entirely different opinion of America and its people after reading the truth. Americans who are active in the magazine project have been told by both Asian and American officials that it is the most effective way to help in combating Communist propaganda they have ever encountered."

This program of sending copies of old magazines, in the opinion of the Chamber of Commerce manager, offers an opportunity to Americans to prove to the people of countries infiltrated by Communists that it is our American way of life and free enterprise that has made the United States the greatest, richest, and most envied nation in the world.

"So strong is the Communist

Research Shows Mosquitoes Like The Hands Best

Do mosquitoes seem to find you more attractive than anyone else nearby? If so, they have their reasons.

Experts hope that studies will soon reveal the main reasons mosquitoes and other insects are attracted to some people more than others.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has conducted studies which show how complex this research is, says Auburn Extension Entomologist Jim Buttram. A man was dressed in a light weight diving suit which kept water vapor, carbon dioxide and other gases from escaping. The man was placed in a small observation room with three man-size dummies and 300 mosquitoes. The subject's breath was drawn outside the room by a hose.

The mosquitoes showed no preference between the man and the dummies. But when carbon dioxide was discharged within the room, the man attracted more mosquitoes than the dummies.

The pests were also attracted when a cloth shirt was put over the man's head, regardless of the presence or absence of carbon dioxide.

Researchers exposed the man's face, no increased attraction. But when his hands were uncovered, the mosquitoes were attracted. In this instance, this mosquito group preferred the hands while another group was lured more to the face.

So, to be less attractive to the pests, wear white, be still, don't breathe and mosquitoes may not bother you.

"If scientists can find the precise causes of the attractions more effective repellents can be developed," says Buttram. "And such information may lead to more effective baits for luring and trapping insects."

-100 YEARS AGO-

By The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

USE OF DRUGS

Aspirin is a commonly used and beneficial medicine. Yet even this mild drug can not be tolerated by some individuals. Any drug can carry a potential for harm. Today's physician must have a sound knowledge of pharmacology, which is the study of drugs, in order to utilize curative agents to their best advantage, and he must be alert to the side effects of a drug. The possibilities of toxic or poisonous effect are classified in two types. One type is associated with the direct action of a drug. For instance, there is the toxic effect of digitalis when used in excessive dosage or in normal dosage under unfavorable conditions. There is the effect resulting from an idiosyncrasy of the patient. Most physicians have patients who cannot tolerate aspirin or who react unfavorably to barbiturates. Repeated use of potentially harmful drugs such as morphine may induce an acquired tolerance that could lead to serious consequences. The modern physician has at his disposal a wide variety of drugs of remarkable efficiency. These new curative agents are contributing to prolongation of life and reduction in human suffering. The physician studies the action of the disease, the action of the drug used, and the resulting effect on the individual. Observing carefully, the doctor is able to select the drug that is most suitable for the patient in order to produce the desired result.

Master Or Victim—

Where Do You Stand?

AUBURN, Ala. — No matter how small your income, you can be its master—not its victim.

Some families seem to know how to manage even on small incomes, but family service agencies report that people with incomes about $10,000 a year come to them for advice on handling money.

Not having enough money is the problem most home-makers have in common. But having more money isn't necessarily the answer," says Extension Economist Elizabeth Bryan. Learning how to manage what you have is the first step in the right direction.

If you'd like to do a better job of managing money, the home management specialist rearrange the items according to the things you would like to accomplish in the near future, then the things you would like to do in about a year and last, the things you would like sometime in the future.

"Believe it or not, these lists will help you make more important decisions. And if you know where you're going, it's easier to figure out how to get there," points out Miss Bryan.

You may find out that day to day decisions will be easier because you have a definite goal in mind.

From 1959 through 1961 imports of foreign steel amounted to about 10.8 million net tons as compared to 6.6 million net tons of American steel exported. It has been estimated that about 40,000 more jobs could be available to American steelworkers if import-export trends of former years could be re-established, with exports predominating.

Total employment in the American iron and steel industry rose by more than 72,000 from January 1961 to January 1962. There were 554,654 employed in the industry at the beginning of this year.

Traffic Accidents Reported In Elba Area During June

The five counties which comprise the Dothan Post of the Highway Patrol reported 61 rural traffic accidents during the month of June, which resulted in 25 personal injuries and six traffic deaths, according to information released by Safety Director Floyd H. Mann.

A breakdown of the five-county area reveals the following facts: Coffee County reported 9 traffic mishaps which caused four personal injuries; Dale County reported 16 traffic accidents, 6 personal injuries and one traffic death; Geneva County reported 5 traffic accidents causing two personal injuries; Henry County reported six accidents resulting in 7 personal injuries and 1 death; Houston County reported 25 traffic accidents causing 3 personal injuries and four traffic deaths.

The director said, "Here are the same deadly traffic violations that keep the traffic death rate high in your area and may take your life at any moment . . . as a result of your mistakes . . . or the mistakes of another driver: (a) Excessive speed (b) Driving on the wrong side of road (c) Failure to yield right-of-way (d) Driving under the influence of alcohol (e) Following too closely (f) Failure to give proper signals."

Mr. Mann concluded that 33 of the 61 traffic accidents reported in this five-county area were one-vehicle accidents. Therefore, if we are to avoid the tragedies of the road, we must obey the laws and control our motor vehicles.

Eglin Bomber Light Skies In Training

An Eglin based B-47 Stratofortress bomber with a three million watt flashing light attached under its tail will be lighting the northwest Florida evening skies on the average of two or three times weekly. Although the bomber is as much as eighty miles from the northwest gulf coastline, the light will be clearly visible to area residents.

The brightly lit bomber is assisting Eglin technicians in checking out and calibrating extremely sensitive electronic equipment along the Eglin Gulf Test Range. Although observers on the ground say it seems longer, the duration of each flash is only fifty microseconds, or fifty-thousandths of a second. The light is powered by 2500 volts of electricity released into a tube of xenon gas.

The calibration checks are scheduled to continue for an indefinite length of time.
